

I'm an unaligned member of the public pressing to keep the ownership rules intact. I fear that lifting them would aid additional corporate consolidation that would diminish economic and creative opportunities for artists and create a sameness among media outlets. I understand that many of the large media companies provide different types of contents/channels, but I fear that the message, news and opinions from each one of those contents/channels will be the same. I want opinions from a variety of sources! Please leave the rules as they are and keep Democracy and Freedom alive in this country.

glenn and mary